Notes on Contributors

Antoni J. P. Brack is Professor of Business Legal Studies at the University of Twente, the Netherlands. He has authored a book on managerial law (Bedrijfsrecht, 5th edn, 2010) and published numerous articles including in the European Business Law Journal. He is founder and co-editor of the Dutch Consumer Law Journal. He is a non-executive director of a UK-owned Dutch chemical company and a part-time judge in the Court of Appeal at Arnhem, the Netherlands.

Lesley C. P. Broos is a researcher and lecturer in the combined field of IT/telecommunications and law at the University of Twente, the Netherlands. He is currently preparing a PhD thesis on enhancing technological innovation in telecommunication infrastructure services and has published on the issues of regulatory supervision and first and second mover advantage theory relating to technology advancement.

Nupur Chowdhury is a PhD student in law at the School of Management and Governance, University of Twente. She is researching the issue of legal certainty in the context of a multilevel product quality and safety regulation of medical products.

Shawn Donnelly is an assistant professor of European Economic Governance at the University of Twente, the Netherlands. He is the author of Reshaping Economic and Monetary Union (Manchester 2004) and The Regimes of European Integration: Constructing Governance of the Single Market (Oxford 2010).

Michiel A. Heldeweg is Professor of Public Governance Law at the University of Twente and an honorary judge (within the Dutch District Court system; administrative bench). His research is on 'smart rules and regimes', fostering technological innovation while protecting against related risks, as set out in his 2009 inaugural lecture. His focus lies on regulation in the field of Environmental and Energy Law ('Sustainable Energy Law'). He is especially interested in matters of legal design and good legal governance in the new or post-regulatory state.

Martin W. Holterman is a post-doctoral researcher at the European University Institute. Previously, he was a PhD student at the University of Twente, the Netherlands. His research includes a theoretical analysis of the problems of semi-public institutions applying neo-institutional economics, and when such a set up is optimal.

Evisa Kica is a PhD student at the University of Twente. Her research focuses on the legitimacy of the multilevel standardisation process as it relates to the field of nanotechnology. In addition, she has been involved in EU contract research projects related to patent quality and innovation issues, and has investigated the role of patents in emerging technologies.

Luisa Marin is an assistant professor of European Law at the University of Twente, the Netherlands. Her research focuses on the constitutional analysis of the policies and instruments of the EU's Area of Freedom, Security and Justice, with particular attention to European criminal law cooperation. She has written on the European Arrest Warrant and its implementation in domestic legal Orders and co-edited the book Still not resolved? Constitutional Challenges to the European Arrest Warrant, Nijmegen, Wolf Legal Publishers, 2009, together with Elspeth Guild. Her recent research covers migration and border controls and Internet law.

Victor Rodriguez is an assistant professor in the Department of Legal and Economic Governance Studies at the University of Twente. He lectures on European Economic Governance and Macroeconomics. He has extensively researched the effects of biological material transfer agreements and has been involved in European projects on patents, corporate R&D and innovation. Previously, he was a tenured researcher in the TNO Innovation Policy Group and a visiting scholar at the University of Ottawa and the Conference Board of Canada.

Maurits P. T. Sanders studied public administration at the University of Twente in the Netherlands. He is a PhD student at the University of Twente while working as a lecturer in Public Policy Making at Saxion Universities of Applied Sciences in the Netherlands. His PhD research is on complex decision making in public-private partnerships.

Ramses A. Wessel is Professor of the Law of the European Union and other International Organisations at the University of Twente, the Netherlands. His research focuses on the relationship between international, EU and national laws. He is the editor of the International Organizations Law Review and in 2008 co-edited the book Multilevel Regulation and the EU: The Interplay between Global, European and National Normative Processes (The Hague/Boston: Martinus Nijhoff Publishers).
