

Contents

Foreword by S. Zecchini	9
--	---

Centrally Planned Economies in Transition: an Introductory Overview of Selected Issues and Strategies

by H.J. Blommestein, M. Marrese and S. Zecchini

Background	11
Property rights reform and the creation of competitive markets	12
Overview of the papers on property rights reform	14
The objectives of macroeconomic policy during the transition period	18
Overview of the papers on the structural conditions for a stable macroeconomic regime	19
Overview of the seminars	23
Conclusions	25

Property Rights Reform, Macroeconomic Performance, and Welfare

by J.M. van Brabant

Transition to a market economy, ownership, and property rights' reform	29
Alternative ownership forms and their implications	31
Privatisation and its meanings in central and eastern Europe	33
The experience with privatisation in market economies and lessons for central and eastern Europe	35
Difficulties of privatising state assets in central and eastern Europe	38
Divestment	39
Private exploitation of the usufruct	41
Operating privatised assets	41
Alternative forms of privatisation	42
Conclusions	45

Privatisation of Socialist Economies: General Issues and the Polish Case

by D.M. Nuti

Summary	51
Introduction	52
The general case for privatisation	52
System-specific arguments for privatisation in socialist economies	53
The resilience of private ownership	53
The case for extension of limited property rights	55
Ownership and entrepreneurship	56
General issues: subjectivisation	57

Private appropriation of state property	58
Privatisation in the reform sequence	59
The Polish economic framework	60
Polish privatisation: debates and practice	61
The new Polish law on privatisation (July 1990)	63

Property Rights Reform: Hungarian Country Study

by K. Crane

Introduction	69
Why privatise?	70
The capital efficiency argument	71
Poor allocation of investment	72
Poor utilisation of the existing capital stock	75
Privatisation of the nomenklatura	75
The 'Mining of Capital' argument	76
Conclusions	77
How will Hungary privatise?	77
The legal framework	77
The law on business organisations	77
The law on the transformation of enterprises	78
The law on investment of foreigners in Hungary	79
The bankruptcy law	79
The law on safeguarding of state assets	79
The institutional framework	80
The commercial banking system	80
Bond and stock markets	81
The state property agency	81
Other institutions	81
Potential policies	82
The process of privatisation	82
Privatisation of land	83
The pace of privatisation	84
Extent of privatisation and foreign ownership	84
Economic consequences	85
The impact of foreign investment	86
Privatisation and Hungarian investors	87
Problems of privatisation	88
Fraud	88
Tax collection	88
Unemployment and the reallocation of labour	89
Legal costs	90
Conclusions	90

Strategies for Economic Transformation in central and eastern Europe:

Role of Financial Market Reform

by L. Brainard

Introduction	95
Where economic transformation should lead	95
Where does the reform effort stand today?	97
Stabilization and structural reform – the Polish model	98

The condition of socialist banking and finance	100
Approaches to financial market reforms	101
New perspectives on financial reforms	102
Strategies for economic transformation – a summing up	104

Structural Conditions for a Stable Monetary Régime and Efficient Allocation of Investment: Soviet Country Study

by W. Schrettl

Introduction	109
On the conditions for a successful transformation	109
On corruption	110
On democracy	110
On sequencing	111
On the elimination of the monetary overhang	112
A political aspect	113
Techniques	113
Elements of a workable financial infrastructure	115
Central bank	116
Commercial banks	117
The environment for a workable financial infrastructure	119
Collateral and horizontal capital flows	119
Monetary policy: some conditions	120
A remark on convertibility	120
Concluding remarks	122